Foreword

Anglo-Saxon Studies in Archaeology and History is a series concerned with the archaeology and history of England and its neighbours during the period circa 400-1100.

ASSAH offers researchers an opportunity to publish new work in an inter- and multi-disciplinary forum that allows for a diversity of approaches and subject matter. Contributions placing England in its international context are as warmly welcomed as those that focus on England itself.

Papers submitted to ASSAH must be comprehensible to non-specialist readers. They must, furthermore, conform to the journal's house style. A copy of the style-sheet is available on-line, at: <http://www.arch.ox.ac.uk/assah>. All papers are peer-reviewed.

The Editor is grateful to the contributors to this volume for their prompt and efficient responses, and to those peer reviewers who have taken the time to read and comment upon submissions.

All papers for consideration for future volumes should be sent to the Editor.
